BLUES BY THE BAY

Solomon Burke

Each year in September, blues fans from all over the world gather on Fort Mason's Great Meadow for a weekend of soulful and exciting music by some of the best blues singers and instrumentalists now performing. Headlining the 22nd Annual San Francisco Blues Festival are the "King of Rock 'n' Soul" Solomon Burke and his big band, and two-time Grammy winning guitarist Buddy Guy.

The oldest ongoing blues gathering in the world, the San Francisco Blues Festival is known as much for its vibrant and friendly atmosphere as its innovative and imaginative programming. Blues producer, writer and historian Tom Mazzolini is the founder and producer of the festival. Since the beginning, Mazzolini has emphasized presentation of musicians from the entire blues spectrum: Mississippi Delta down-home country blues, Chicago blues, Louisiana zydeco and cajun, Texas guitar blues, and West Coast rhythm and blues.

In addition to the headliners, this year's lineup includes guitarist Robben Ford and The Blue Line (with bassist Roscoe Beck and drummer Tom Brechtlein), harmonica master and vocalist Kim Wilson and the Tigermen, the Charmaine Neville Band from New Orleans' first family of music, showman Guitar Shorty, "sweetheart of the blues" vocalist Carol Fran and guitarist Clarence Hollimon, New Orleans-born blind pianist Henry Butler, raw Delta bluesman Big Bad Smitty, zydeco roots artists Fernest Arceneaux and the Thunders, a capella singers and former Ikettes the Stovall Sisters, the Fresno Blues All Stars (Hosea Leavy, Harmonica Slim and Kenny Prymus), finger-picking women's story-teller Del Ray, and the Cottonfield Trio (Big Bob Deance, Country Pete and harmonica player Carlos Zialcita).

The Festival also features a wide selection of great cajun cooking, as well as a fabulous view of San Francisco Bay with the Golden Gate and Marin Headlands in the background.

A Blues Festival Free Kickoff Concert featuring many Festival performers takes place on Friday, September 23, from noon to 1:30pm at Justin Herman Plaza on the Embarcadero at the foot of Market Street. In addition, the San Francisco nightclub Johnny Love's hosts five nights of live blues leading up to the Festival, providing an opportunity to extend the Festival stage and showcase local blues talent.

The Festival runs from 11am to 5:30pm Saturday and Sunday, September 24 and 25. Tickets are $16.50 per day in advance, $20 at the door, and $28 for a special two-day ticket available only in advance. Tickets can be purchased at all BASS locations or charged by phone through BASS. Parking is free at the Presidio's Crissy Field, with free shuttle service to the Great Meadow.

For daily lineup, see listing under September 24. For information, call 979-5588.

SOLO MIO

Allen Ginsberg

"One of the joys of working on this festival," says primary curator Bill Talen, "is feeling the seasonal change—where are the best stories coming from this year?...If monologues were clouds, they would come madly from every horizon.

"This year the most moving words are catching us from behind, from the past. We are reliving Huey Newton, the Alcatraz Occupation, Shakespeare's women and Allen Ginsberg 38 years after Howl.

"Americans produce nostalgia and erase history. But what a singing Wobbly like Utah Phillips shares with the wunderkinds like Danny Hoch or Cintra Wilson is that these people dramatically unsettle us. It isn't as easy to sentimentalize with the spoken word—you can't make a Golden Oldies medley out of their work. These artists are telling their stories in a spotlight that comes toward us from our future."

SOLO MIO 1994 is presented at Fort Mason Center's Bayfront and Cowell Theaters and at Climate Theater. The six-week festival of solo performance is once again dedicated to startling and original writer-performers. Highlights include a retrospective of John O'Keefe's work, legendary poet Allen Ginsberg reading from his works, British actress Claire Bloom performing "These Are Women," American Indian activist John Trudell, and Obie award-winner Danny Hoch.

There are new works by Roger Guenveur Smith, Cintra Wilson, Brenda Wong Aoki and Darci Picoult, and performances by Rosalie Sorrels and Utah Phillips, Anne Galjour, and disabled performers Cheryl Marie Wade, Lee Williams, David Roche and Afi Tiombe-Kambon.

The "Official Opening Night," September 16 at the Cowell Theater, is a tribute to this year's SOLO MIO award-winner Donald Montwill. Included are performances by Marga Gomez, Tom Ammiano, Charles Busch, Connie Champagne, Joan Jett Blakk, Keith Hennessey, Suzy Berger, Wayne Corbitt and David E. Johnston.

SOLO MIO '94 runs from September 9 through October 16. All showtimes at the Cowell and Bayfront are 8pm. Tickets are $10 to $18, with a $25 ticket for Opening Night (September 16). There is a six-admission $75 sampler ticket available that includes two admissions to two Bayfront, two Cowell, and two Climate performances, valid any night but Saturday. All tickets are available through City Box Office. See listing under September 9 for dates of individual performances. For information and tickets, call 392-4400.

MUSIC & THE ACTOR

"In one way, both of these collaborations are an attempt to find an equal expression between music and the actor," said Sam Shepard of Tongues and Savage/Love. "They are like environments where the words and gestures are given temporary atmospheres to breath in, through sound and rhythm.

"Thematically, the two pieces offer small facets of bigger questions. Shifting impulses around ideas of voices, love, death, etc. We felt no urgency to tie these facets together or force them to tell a 'story' but simply to present them as parts of a whole. Even so, connections somehow arise and a story seems to be told."

Magic Theatre's 1994-95 season opens with Joseph Chaikin directing Tongues and Savage/Love, reprising a unique collaboration between Chaikin and Shepard, two of the foremost theater artists of the contemporary era.

Tongues is a piece for voice and percussion written by Shepard and Chaikin, first performed at Magic Theatre in 1978. Later the two collaborated to produce Savage/Love, a series of love poems performed with Tongues at the Magic as part of the Eureka Theatre Summer Festival in 1979. They were produced by Joseph Papp at the Public Theatre in New York in 1980.

Chaikin founded the Open Theater, a leading off-Broadway experimental company in the 1960s. He has won numerous Obie Awards, including the first for Lifetime Achievement, two Guggenheim Fellowships, and many other prizes. He continues to work in the theater as an actor, director, writer, and scholar. Chaikin is the author of The Presence of the Actor.

Shepard began his career in 1963 with the Theatre Genesis productions of his plays Cowboys and Rock Garden. He is the author two classics of modern theater, True West and Fool For Love, as well as Angel City, Curse of the Starving Class, Inacoma, and others.

Five new plays are also scheduled for Magic's upcoming season. Jon Robin Baitz's Three Hotels concerns a quintessentially American couple who discover that capitalism has complications. Nilo Cruz's Night Train to Bolina is about two children so threatened by starvation and abuse that their only sanctuary is the village cemetary. Three other productions are still to be chosen.

Tongues and Savage/Love and Three Hotels are presented in association with the SOLO/MIO Festival, Climate Theatre's annual celebration of solo performance (see article).

Tongues and Savage/Love preview September 14 through 17, open September 20, and run through October 16, with performances Wednesday through Saturday at 8:30pm, Sunday at 2 and 7:30pm. Tickets are $23 to $17. For reservations, call the Magic Box Office, 441-8822.

AMERICAN MUSIC

At the Blue Bear School of American Music you are as likely to find talented amateurs learning just for pleasure as earnest professionals working at becoming serious rock-and-roll stars. The school is open to all who want to develop or sharpen their musical skills and are willing to give it some effort. Students range from exuberant beginners to veteran professionals attempting to learn a second instrument, study composition, or just exercise their vocal chords.

Blue Bear has offered private and small group instruction since 1971. Started on a shoestring by Steve Savage and Steve and Richard Strauss as a way to finance their struggling rock band, the school now serves about 500 students per quarter. They study everything from elementary fingerpicking guitar styles to advanced blues, jazz and rock techniques. The school's facility in Fort Mason's Landmark Building D now houses eight small lesson/practice rooms, three group classrooms and a 49-seat performance hall.

Fall 1994 classes feature ten-week rock, jazz and blues band workshops, voice classes from beginning to lead and back-up vocals, guitar classes from fingerpicking to lead, plus theory classes, special one-time seminars and more. The fall quarter runs from September 26 through December 3. Registration for new students opens September 6.

Blue Bear also features a scholarship program for young musicians ages 12 to 22 years. Recipients are chosen on the basis of talent, skill and dedication; grants range from one class to a full program of classes, workshops and private lessons for a year.

This year's scholarship winners include guitarist Roy Lettiere, saxophonist Samuel "Howard" Wiley, drummer Joe Kenny, vocalist Mariesa Cirimele, singer/songwriter Essence Goldman, and guitarist/saxophonist Jonathan Erickson.

Applications for 1995 scholarships are due in October; auditions are held in November and December. This year, Grammy Award-winning singer and guitarist Bonnie Raitt is celebrity sponsor of the program.

For a free catalog of Fall Quarter classes and information about scholarships, call 673-3600.

VIETEXPO '94

The Vietnam Chamber of Commerce and Industry (VCCI), in cooperation with the San Francisco Mayor's Office of Commerce and Trade, presents the first Vietnam Trade and Investment Fair to be held in the United States in Fort Mason Center's Herbst Pavilion.

VietExpo '94–San Francisco gives American firms and individuals a chance to learn about investment opportunities in Vietnam. This groundbreaking event brings more than a hundred top decisionmakers from the Vietnamese business and government communities to the US to meet directly with interested Americans.

Participating Vietnamese companies represent such industries as construction, manufacturing, oil, tourism, textiles, leather products, plastics, food processing and seafood.

A seminar, "Prospects for Vietnamese Economic Development," takes place in the Cowell Theater on Friday, September 30 from 1 to 4pm. Vietnamese officials and Americans already working in Vietnam speak about opportunities in infrastructure development, Asian Development Bank and World Bank projects, manufacturing and inter-Asia trade.

The VCCI is a nonprofit voluntary association of more than 8,000 businesses. Their mission is to help accelerate the socioeconomic development of the country and to promote commercial, economic and technological relations between Vietnam and the rest of the world.

The Expo is September 29 through October 1, Thursday through Saturday, from 9am to 5:30pm. Admission is $13 per day or $25 for a three-day package. For information, call (800) 839-1888.

FASHION IN CYBERSPACE

Passport '94

Macy's hosts "the biggest and brightest fashion show and AIDS benefit in the known universe" at Fort Mason Center. Passport '94 "FibreOptic" launches high fashion into cyberspace as the world's top fashion models sizzle across a multimedia "super runway."

This is Macy's twelfth annual fashion show, and the seventh that raises funds for AIDS assistance programs. The beneficiaries of this year's event are AIDS programs at the University of California, San Francisco, and Project Open Hand, an agency providing meals for people with AIDS.

This year the featured designers are Hugo Boss, Giorgio Armani, Ann Demeulemeester, Donna Karan, Calvin Klein, Rifat Ozbek, and guest designers Mark Eisen, Tommy Hilfiger and Gemma Kahng. Their work is presented against the dazzling backdrop of an interactive high-tech visual display produced by Silicon Graphics of Mountain View, with music by England's avant-garde percussion group Stomp. A suprise celebrity host greets the audience on opening night.

The program also features the US premiere of "Fashion Remembers," a display of AIDS Memorial Quilt Panels created by top international designers. Individual panels are also to be displayed in Macy's Union Square windows on September 24. That day at the store, a $10 donation entitles customers to discount coupons, with the proceeds going directly to a list of ten local AIDS organizations.

Each night, Passport '94 is kicked off by a gala party. Opening night festivities include a buffet reception in the Herbst Pavilion, presented by members of the Bay Area Catering Association, and a black-tie dinner in the Festival Pavilion created and prepared by famed chefs Elka Gilmore, Nancy Oakes, and George Morrone. The second-night audience is treated to a wine reception featuring Robert Mondavi Napa Valley wines.

The opening night dinner is at 6pm, the reception at 6:30pm. The second night begins with the wine reception at 6:30pm. The fashion show begins at 8:30pm both nights.

Tickets: Thursday, September 22, opening night show and black tie dinner, $1000 to $150; opening night show and buffet reception, $40 or $30; Friday evening, September 23, show and wine reception, $40, $30 or $20. To make reservations for the dinner, call 502-4489. Tickets for the show and receptions are available at BASS ticket counters, by calling (510) 762-BASS, or at the Macy's Union Square SWATCH department with a $2 service charge.

FINE & RARE BOOKS

Lovers of fine and rare books, as well as beginning and moderate-income collectors, can find treasures at the first San Francisco Collectors Book Fair.

Featured are offering by booksellers from all over the West Coast. Prices range from $10 to $10,000, with most between $25 and $100. There is also an exhibit and auction of fine books by Pacific Book Auction Galleries.

Some dealers at the fair are offering classic rare books, such as first editions of literary works and 200-year-old scientific treatises. Others are selling out-of-print volumes in popular areas such as detective mystery, science fiction, Hollywoodiana and the movies, and Western US history, many signed by the authors.

"Autumn Miscellany: Fine and Rare Books" is the theme of the exhibit and auction. Items on display include a single printed page from a Gutenberg Bible, an original copy of Parmelian Prints of the High Sierras (Ansel Adams' first portfolio), an early edition of Oliver Twist with an insert signed by Charles Dickens, the twenty-volume morocco-bound Writings of Henry David Thoreau, and an Aesop's Fables with tipped-in color plates by Arthur Rackham. Also on sale are a number of valuable first editions including Boswell's The Life of Samuel Johnson, Dickens' Our Mutual Friend, Pickwick Papers, Bleak House and The Mystery of Edwin Drood, as well as a 1602 version of the works of "the ancient and learned English poet" Geoffrey Chaucer.

The Fair is the brainchild of a group of Southern California booksellers and publishers. To fill the need for a sales venue for small and independent booksellers, they organized a series of book fairs for collectors in the 1980s. The idea was so successful that there are now two Antiquarian Book Fairs a year, in May and November, in Burbank.

Now, in conjunction with colleagues in Northern California, they have put together the San Francisco Collectors Book Fair. The event benefits Friends of the San Francisco Public Library, which receives fifty percent of admission receipts.

The Fair, in the Herbst Pavilion, is Friday, September 9, from 5 to 10pm and Saturday, September 10 from 11am to 6pm. "Autumn Miscellany: Fine and Rare Books" exhibit is Friday evening; the auction is Saturday, 9 to 11am. Admission to the Fair is $10 for both days, $5 for Saturday only. Admission to the auction is free. For information, call 896-2665.

PUPPETS & POETRY

From earliest times, puppet theaters have been a part of everyday life in most cultures. Like storytelling, puppet shows provided a popular and inexpensive form of entertainment for children and adults long before the advent of television.

Among the traditions that developed with puppet and marionette theaters was the collaborative effort of artists, writers and musicians. As with other ventures, such as costume and set design for theater, dance and opera, or book design and illustration, artists in many media also tried their skills at puppetry.

Helen Of Troy
by Ariel

The motivation was not only obtaining added income, but also for the challenge of using their talents in new ways and for the enjoyment of the camaraderie and artistic interaction.

The San Francisco Craft & Folk Art Museum has invited seventeen artists working in diverse media to try their hands at making a puppet or marionette. Some of the invited artists, such as David Best, are well-established, while others are emerging. They have all responded to the project with enthusiasm.

Included in the exhibition are painters Inez Storer and Michael Provart; mixed-media artists Joe Sam, Poe Dismuke and Dick Libby; theater designer Ariel; clay artists Siglinda Scarpa, Claudia Cohen and Nitzan Rheem; metal artist Victor Zaikine; fiber artists Gertrud Parker, Morgyn Owen-Celli, Gyongy Laky and Madeline de Joly; installation artist Dolph Gotelli; and actress/jeweler Diane Plumley.

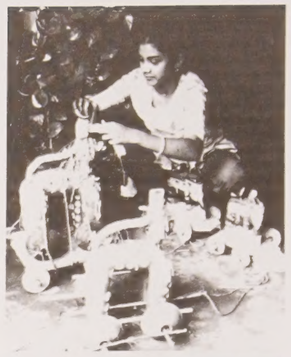
Examples from a few master puppeteers such as Ralph Chesse and Perry Dilly, and traditional puppets from other cultures, are also featured. In addition, several nationally known poets have contributed to the exhibition. Their poetry has been illustrated or embellished through collaboration with other artists. Featured poets are Leonard Nathan, Linda Gregg, Bill Berksen, Frances Drew, and James Shevill.

Many events and activities are scheduled in conjunction with the exhibition, including a composite puppet with parts contributed by each artist, an ongoing poem in the gallery to which the public is invited to contribute, puppet shows and poetry readings. See Galleries listing for this month's events, or call the Museum for details.

The Mezzanine exhibition is "The Monkey With The Flaming Tail." Lanka Podi is an annual festival during full moon at the end of the monsoon in the small town of Sonepur, India. This exhibition brings together objects that play a role in the festival, and photographs of the event

The festival commemorates an event in the Ramayana, the Hindu epic poem, in which the heroic monkey-general Hanuman defeats demonic forces by burning their citadel using his flaming tail as a torch.

The central pieces of festival day are terra cotta images of Hanuman in a wide variety of styles,



Hanuman Images
being decorated for the Festival

from realistically simian to a few riding motorcycles. Young people decorate the images on the day of the festival. That evening, the tails are wrapped in old cloth, fueled with kerosene, and set on fire. Youngsters delight in pulling the wheeled figures through the streets, admiring each other's ingenuity. The firelit town is thereby purged of the demons in a celebration of civic pride.

Traditionally, families took the Monkey God to a local temple for ritual destruction the next morning. Today, the images are often kept as toys.

These exhibitions opened August 13 and continue through October 23.

The San Francisco Craft & Folk Art Museum, in Landmark Building A, is open Tuesday through Sunday from 11am to 5pm, and Saturday from 10am to 5pm. Admission to exhibitions is $1, except on Saturday mornings and Free Museum Day. The first Wednesday of each month, museums and galleries at Fort Mason are open until 8pm, and admission is free. For information, call 775-0990.
